Couple Communication After A Baby Dies - Differing Perspectives, provides a unique approach to this difficult issue. Sherokee Ilse and Tim Nelson teamed up to offer not only their individual perspectives as a man and a woman following the deaths of their children, but also to share how they and their spouses met the challenges many couples face during that stressful time. Addressing one topic at a time, they each share their thoughts and memories and then end the section with some suggestions for couples to consider. They have also incorporated insights from other couples who chose to share their thoughts. Finally, in hopes of creating a meaningful dialogue, the book concludes with a mini-workbook where couples can write their feelings and thoughts on specific questions.
